NUERNBERGMESSE JOINS PROCESS EXPO 2019

McLean, VA - The Food Processing Suppliers Association (FPSA) today announced it has finalized an agreement with NuernbergMesse to build and promote a Beverage Zone at this year's PROCESS EXPO, the leading global food and beverage equipment and technology trade show, taking place October 8-11 at Chicago's McCormick Place. As a part of this agreement, NuernbergMesse will market booth space in this zone to suppliers to the beverage industry and promote PROCESS EXPO attendance to this vital segment of the industry.

"Our relationship with NuernbergMesse goes back several years and we're excited about their return and what they can bring to PROCESS EXPO," said Jarrod McCarroll, Chairman of the Food Processing Suppliers Association (FPSA) and President of Weber, Inc. "PROCESS EXPO's strength is in the fact that it provides manufacturing solutions across the horizontal spectrum of the food and beverage industry. Having NuernbergMesse's Beverage Zone, along with our other international partners, further strengthens this, providing even more value for the attendee."

"NuernbergMesse is happy to have a continued partnership with the Food Processing Suppliers Association. We value what this partnership brings to the food and beverage industry and the global significance PROCESS EXPO has as an industry-leading event," said Bill Ingwersen, Managing Director of NuernbergMesse North America.

The Beverage Zone will be an integral part of the PROCESS EXPO trade show, incorporating manufacturing solutions, exhibits, education and expertise for beverage manufacturers alongside the myriad solutions for food industry professionals. PROCESS EXPO attendees will have full access to all Beverage Zone exhibits throughout the show.
